American music out of place in World-beat show

To the Editors:

Some erroneous statements regarding KAUR were made in the March 4 Inciter column.

First, rap music has been and will continue to be played during nightly Kaleidoscope shows at the DJ's discretion and during our specialty weekend rap show.

Second, the "cancellation" Mr. Kreps refers to in his column was not a cancellation, but a request that he no longer play American music during his World-beat show. A World-beat show spotlights music from different areas of the world. It had nothing to do with the style of music being played (rap music from other countries is acceptable in a World-beat show); it had nothing to do with the executive staff's taste in music; and it certainly had nothing to do with Black History Month.

The issue was simply this: American music does not fit into a format of the World-beat program.

Sincerely,
Kathy Hansen
